James Hagan's USA Officiating Tour

James Hagan was selected to tour the USA with the Royal Australian Air Force Rugby Team for two weeks in November 2009. During the tour James had the honour of being the first foreign official ever to referee a match at the United States Armed Forces Rugby Championships when he refereed the United States Navy versus the United States Army.

James was also the Assistant Referee in a number of other Armed Forces games and during the inaugural test match between the United States Air Force and the Royal Australian Air Force. This tour exposed James to a different style of rugby and gave him a significant number of development opportunities."
